Guns silent as peace monitors arrive in South

By Marjory E. De Rivera
The Washington Post

MANILA (AP) — The long, bitter conflict between the Philippine government and the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) ended in a ceasefire on March 23, 1998, as peace monitors arrived in the south. The ceasefire, which was brokered by the United States, marks a significant step towards ending the decades-long conflict. The CPP, which has been fighting for an independent communist state, has agreed to a ceasefire with the government. The ceasefire is expected to lead to a permanent peace agreement.

There's no better time than now to eliminate TB

World TB Day 2004

World TB Day is celebrated annually on December 18th to raise awareness of tuberculosis (TB) and its treatment. The day is marked by various activities, including rallies, seminars, and the distribution of educational materials. The goal is to reduce the stigma associated with TB and encourage people to seek treatment. The World Health Organization (WHO) leads the global effort to eliminate TB, with the aim of achieving a world free of the disease by 2050.

Jeepney leaders decry gov't bias for buses

By Express

Jeepney leaders have expressed their dissatisfaction with the government's decision to favor buses over jeepneys. They argue that jeepneys are a more practical and affordable mode of public transport, especially in the Philippines. The leaders claim that the government's decision is biased and that it will lead to the decline of the jeepney industry. They are calling for a more balanced approach to public transport that takes into account the needs of the people.

Japan agency keeps investment grade rating on RP foreign debt

By David L. Williams
The Japanese Ministry of Finance today kept its investment grade rating on the Philippines' foreign debt, despite a downgrade by Standard & Poor's last week. The ministry said it believes the Philippines' economic fundamentals remain strong, and that the country's foreign debt is well managed. The rating is maintained at 'BBB+' by Japan's External Credit Agency (ECA). The ECA is a government-owned agency that provides credit ratings for foreign bonds. It is one of the few agencies that still rates foreign bonds on a scale from 'AAA' to 'D'. The ECA's rating is based on a number of factors, including the country's economic growth, inflation, and foreign trade. The ECA's rating is widely respected in Japan and is often used by Japanese investors. The ECA's rating is also used by other investors, particularly in Asia. 1997) were significant and negative. Thus, the more a country is committed to economic liberalization, the more it is likely to experience a decline in the number of international migrants.

Specifically, the results point out that the countries with a higher degree of economic liberalization are more likely to experience a decline in the number of international migrants. This is true for all countries, but the effect is more pronounced for the countries with a higher degree of economic liberalization.

Overall, the results suggest that economic liberalization is associated with a decline in the number of international migrants. This is true for all countries, but the effect is more pronounced for the countries with a higher degree of economic liberalization.

Wake up and smell the mountain coffee

By Andrew W. Brown

High in the mountains of the Andes, a small village of about 100 people is nestled in a lush, green valley. The village is known for its organic coffee, which is grown on the slopes of the mountains. The coffee is grown using traditional methods, and the farmers are proud of their product. They are now being recognized for their efforts, thanks to a campaign by Figma Foundation.
